The U.S. military has given up on efforts to make the battle gun dubbed the "Sgt. York" workable. After spending one-and-a-half billion dollars to buy 146 of the anti-aircraft guns, they decided this week not to spend the additional $4.5 billion for 618 more. We salute this decision. The efforts made to make the gun workabale have cost a lot of money, but we see no reason to keep pouring more money down that rathole . . . especially since the gun works only in theory. The greater thinkers of the Pentagon aparently realized it would be better to start over with another theory than to continue searching for ways to make the Sgt. York workable. We are sure the real Sgt. York would have approved of this action.

School is in session again . . . already. It is hard for us to believe the summer is gone; but even the weatherman is helping convince us, with a few days of cooler weather. We need to be careful as these youngsters change their routes, preoccupied with getting to and from school and meeting new and old Seatbelts are something strongly supported from this corner. Around our house there have been times when my arguments in favor of them have been so strong as to be classified downright ugly. Well, a couple of weeks ago any guilt feelings my ugliness might have created in my mind were wiped out . along with one of our vehicles and some else's new ski boat. Heddy and our teenage son were unhurt and can thank the Good Lord and those seatbelts for protecting them. Heddy has never liked being confined by seat belts, but she is now convinced they do exactly what they are designed to do . . . save lives and protect from injuries.

The news is out, all over town . . . Ronald Reagan was an undercover agent for the FBI - or at least an informant - during his acting days. We expected this news would have folks awful upset, but most have just passed it off. There are news reporters in England however who are beside themselves with anger over the news that the British Secret Service routinely investigated their background. We can't understand their problem, unless they have something to hide. Security checks don't involve near the details that a credit check for a car loan includes . . . we know, as we have

Roswell Gilbert, the Florida man convicted of murder in the mercy killing of his ailing wife failed to get the release from jail he sought. Governor Bob Graham thought he should, but it needed approval from the majority of his cabinet members to be official. Gilbert didn't get this. Mercy killing is a touchy matter -- it hurts to see loved ones slowly dying -- but killing is still killing. Court juries are handling each case differently. A recent California case resulted in a not-guilty verdict from the jury, while Mr. Gilbert got a life sentence. Then there is the theory pushed by a Florida judge this week that the children of aging parents are at fault if this happens. We won't touch that

First-class mail is by law only delivered by the U.S. Postal Service. We expect the days for this monopoly are numbered. Recently James C. Miller III, nominee for U.S. budget director, spoke out and advocated abolishing this monopoly and letting private enterprise compete. There were once many jokes about the post office and packages or parcel post. Then UPS got into the act and did a great job. There was a time when it wasn't safe to mention UPS around a friend who also happened to work for the post office We have an aunt who recently retired as a postmaster (she said she ain't nobody's mistress) and once I thought she was going to throw me out of her dining room for making the comment that I was amazed at the good job UPS was doing. Competition does make for better service; in fact, we don't think anyone should have a monopoly . . . except us! That opinion is voiced to point out a common thought, but look at the mess we have because some knucklehead in the U.S. Justice Department decided to break up the telephone monopoly of AT&T, and we are paying the price.

Apartheid in South Africa is in the headlines around the world every day. It is causing killing practically every day in that country and demonstrations around the world. Now we have Rev. Jerry Falwell who went there for a few hours and came home announcing leaders as phonies. We agree that no one person can truthfully speak for all of any group, but to call a Nobel prizewinner a phony . . . maybe Falwell is . . . no, I won't even think that. We do think Falwell, Teddy Kennedy and all other headline seekers should tend to their own knitting and let those with a real interest solve the problems of

While expounding on South Africa - and we have never even been there - we note that the Zulu tribe is calling for calm and urging the U.S. not to install sanctions against the country. Now we all know that Hollywood has painted the Zulus as mean killers. Yet here they are urging us to be reasonable and not cut off support, because the folks who would be hurt worse would be the very people suffering now. This makes sense to me, but then others from the same country seem to suggest we just starve them out. Maybe we better get together with Rev. Falwell and solve the problems in America while people in South Africa work for a solution to their problems.

The Alabama legislature is in session by now and this will probably be one of the hottest special sessions ever recorded. The many issues to be decided, coupled with the election looming over the hill do tend to cause the temperature to rise.

The U.S. military has given up on efforts to make the battle gun dubbed the Sgt. York" workable. After spending one-and-a-half billion dollars to buy 146 of the anti-aircraft guns, they decided this week not to spend the additional $4.5 billion for 618 more. We salute this decision. The efforts made to make the gun workabale have cost a lot of money, but we see no reason to keep pouring more money down that rathole . . . especially since the gun works only in theory. The greater thinkers of the Pentagon aparently realized it would be better to start over with another theory than to continue searching for ways to make the Sgt. York workable. We are sure the real Sgt. York would have approved of this action.

School is in session again . . . already. It is hard for us to believe the summer is gone; but even the weatherman is helping convince us, with a few days of cooler weather. We need to be careful as these youngsters change their routes, preoccupied with getting to and from school and meeting new and old Seatbelts are something strongly supported from this corner. Around our house there have been times when my arguments in favor of them have been so strong as to be classified downright ugly. Well, a couple of weeks ago any guilt feelings my ugliness might have created in my mind were wiped out . along with one of our vehicles and some else's new ski boat. Heddy and our teenage son were unhurt and can thank the Good Lord and those seatbelts for protecting them. Heddy has never liked being confined by seat belts, but she is now convinced they do exactly what they are designed to do . . . save lives and protect from injuries.

The news is out, all over town . . . Ronald Reagan was an undercover agent for the FBI - or at least an informant - during his acting days. We expected this news would have folks awful upset, but most have just passed it off. There are news reporters in England however who are beside themselves with anger over the news that the British Secret Service routinely investigated their background. We can't understand their problem, unless they have something to hide. Security checks don't involve near the details that a credit check for a car loan includes . . . we know, as we have

Roswell Gilbert, the Florida man convicted of murder in the mercy killing of his ailing wife failed to get the release from jail he sought. Governor Bob Graham thought he should, but it needed approval from the majority of his cabinet members to be official. Gilbert didn't get this. Mercy killing is a touchy matter -- it hurts to see loved ones slowly dying -- but killing is still killing. Court juries are handling each case differently. A recent California case resulted in a not-guilty verdict from the jury, while Mr. Gilbert got a life sentence. Then there is the theory pushed by a Florida judge this week that the children of aging parents are at fault if this happens. We won't touch that

First-class mail is by law only delivered by the U.S. Postal Service. We expect the days for this monopoly are numbered. Recently James C. Miller III, nominee for U.S. budget director, spoke out and advocated abolishing this monopoly and letting private enterprise compete. There were once many jokes about the post office and packages or parcel post. Then UPS got into the act and did a great job. There was a time when it wasn't safe to mention UPS around a friend who also happened to work for the post office. We have an aunt who recently retired as a postmaster (she said she ain't nobody's mistress) and once I thought she was going to throw me out of her dining room for making the comment that I was amazed at the good job UPS was doing. Competition does make for better service; in fact, we don't think anyone should have a monopoly . . . except us! That opinion is voiced to point out a common thought, but look at the mess we have because some knucklehead in the U.S. Justice Department decided to break up the telephone monopoly of AT&T, and we are paying the price.

Apartheid in South Africa is in the headlines around the world every day. It is causing killing practically every day in that country and demonstrations around the world. Now we have Rev. Jerry Falwell who went there for a few hours and came home announcing leaders as phonies. We agree that no one person can truthfully speak for all of any group, but to call a Nobel prizewinner a phony . . . maybe Falwell is . . . no, I won't even think that. We do think Falwell, Teddy Kennedy and all other headline seekers should tend to their own knitting and let those with a real interest solve the problems of for speeding, driving with revoked

While expounding on South Africa - and we have never even been there - we note that the Zulu tribe is calling for calm and urging the U.S. not to install sanctions against the country. Now we all know that Hollywood has painted the Zulus as mean killers. Yet here they are urging us to be reasonable and not cut off support, because the folks who would be hurt worse would be the very people suffering now. This makes sense to me, but then others from the same country seem to suggest we just starve them out. Maybe we better get together with Rev. Falwell and solve the problems in America while people in South Africa work for a solution to their problems.

Mitzi Marler, 16-year-old daughter of Wayne and Judy Marler of Enterprise, has been accepted as a student at the Alabama School of Fine Arts, the state secondary school for artistically gifted students. The school is located in Birmingham and is one of only two state-supported arts career schools in the country. The other is in North Carolina, but only Alabama's is designed exclusively for junior and high school students. It is a public school and offers professional training in creative writing, dance, drama, music and visual arts. All students are also required to participate in a standard academic program, including language, social studies, science and math. The school is located in the former Eva Comer home on 18th Street North, near the Birmingham-Jefferson Civic Center and the Museum of Art. school at the Civic Center. Auditionng had been a long-time dream for Mitzi. She first approached her parents about trying out for the school when she was going into the seventh grade; the school accepts students from that grade up. But her mother and father told her she was too young. "We told her we would discuss it when she was older," Judy recalls. "And she

But her mother says it was no flowers. In addition she was named secret. "Mitzi couldn't walk through a room without doing a flip or a turn," Judy says.

Mitzi is beginning her junior year in high school and says one of the most difficult things about going away to school is leaving Enterprise High School, where she was a cheerleader. "It'll be hard." she admits, "and I'll really miss my friends and all the activities at

I went to Atlanta last weekend to watch the Braves play St. Louis and had a great time, despite a lot of rain and a sweep by the Cardinals. Saturday night, the Cards won 7-0 in a game shortened to five innings due to a monsoon, but the innings were the only thing shortened, because two rain delays (one lasting over two hours) resulted in the game lasting almost five hours! Sunday's game went smoothly and was enjoyable, and I strongly urge all baseball fans to go to Atlanta and see a game. If you've never been you'll find the atmosphere and excitement well worth the price of admission.

Back to football . . . The Elba Tigers will open the season Friday night and a lot of questions will be answered in a hurry. The Tigers lost almost every starter off last year's team, and coupled with injuries, Coach Wood will field a whole new team against U.M.S. Elba will be inexperienced in many positions, but Elba has a solid football program filled with pride and a winning attitude, and I expect the team to improve every week and be the kind of team we've become accustomed to watching. C'mon out Friday night and yell louder than ever to let this bunch know we believe in them and are going to support 'em all the way!

DR. PRESCRIBES ESJC FOR CAREER INVESTMENT

Staying healthy requires a commitment. So does building your future. Both are investments in yourself that will always pay off.

Dr. Ben Turner from Daleville Medical Center, started his career investment at ESJC from 1973-75. 'I received a good foundation in the sciences and mathematics," says Dr. Turner. "All my hours transferred to Auburn, and I made better grades at Auburn because I went to ESJC."

Reasons for selecting ESJC vary. For Dr. Turner it was the good math/science program, the pretty campus, and the convenient location. "It was close by. I was not quite ready to leave home but I wanted to go to college."

Take the doctor's advice on a sound investment for a healthy career through ESJC. "If you want to go to a junior college, you could not make a better choice," says Dr. Turner.

The Rebels get into the meat of their schedule quickly, as 1A power Ariton comes knocking opening week and other early contests include Samson, Louisville and Straughn. That will be a real test!

The 1984 county champs should be improved offensively, despite the loss of standouts Tony Shiver (FB) and Michael Hill (QB). Sophomore Sean Collins appears to have inherited the signal-calling duties, and while he is young, with veterans like Darren Grant, Chris Carnley and Bobby Hill in the backfield, Collins should grow up quickly and quickly assume the role of a leader. The Zion Chapel line is big and strong, giving fans hopes of a powerful offensive unit. The line will anchored by Bobby Flowers, Kenny Ray Evans, Wade Flowers and Randall Barr (all seniors), while uniors David Johnson, Stacy Hussey, Greg Little, Douglas Evans ind Brian McLeod should all get a The defense will look familiar, as most players will go both ways;

Coach Rick Moody, a long-time assistant at Charles Henderson, is now at the Bulldog helm and his enthusiasm, combined with a Aug. 29 winning attitude, could result in Sept. 6 another season filled with wins. The offense played a key role in Sept. 20 Kinston's success last season, and Sept. 27 although speedster Alvin Henderson Oct. 4 and fullback Leroy Barron are gone, Oct. 11 there are still enough 'Dawgs around Oct. 18 to bite chunks of yardage out of Oct. 25 opposing defenses. The 1-2 punch Nov. 1 will come from quarterback Glen Barnes, who rushed for 244 yards and passed for 190 yards last season, and tailback Paul Folmar, who gained 275 yards rushing and caught seven passes for 71 yards. > species, the bobcat thrives any place prey is abundant. Its physique, keen sense of sight and hearing makes it a very efficient predator, feeding mostly on small mammals and birds. Studies have shown that the rabbit is the most common food item. The reason probably is that the cottontail rabbit is abundant throughout Alabama and most active at the same time as the bobcat.

The bobcat is mostly a loner (except during the mating season) and spends a great deal of time establishing and defending its erritory. Its home range varies from 1-20 square miles depending directly on food availability, sex of the animal, season and climate.

The mating season of the bobcat extends from late February to June and is announced by the loud caterwauling of the male, which is similar to, but louder than that of domestic cats. Following a gestation of about 62 days, the female will give birth to an average of three kittens. The male takes no part in the rearing of the young. The female bobcat is young the skills necessary for them to survive in the wild.

The bobcat is one of Alabama's trappers have averaged an annual harvest of over 2,400 bobcats within Alabama's bobcat population is stable with the highest density being State in the southern half of the state. Siegelman To Head SOBER Effort To Cut Alcohol Accidents

Secretary of State Don Siegelman drinking and driving and vowed to announced last week a new SOBER continue this efforts with the effort designed to increase program as state safety chair and awareness of drunken driving and chair of SOBER. curb alcohol-related car crashes, injuries and fatalities.

As part of the program, pamphlets warning drivers against drinking and driving were placed in rental cars prior to the long Labor Day Holiday weekend, Siegelman said. Car rental companies participating in the program were Budget, National and Avis. Siegelman said a second phase of the program to be implemented later involves placing similar pamphlets in each new and used car sold in Alabama. "This program needs to be continued and expanded," he said, "because it is essential that drivers be reminded at every opportunity of the senseless carnage caused by mixing alcohol with Siegelman said state figures show that 50 to 60 percent of all traffic fatalities in Alabama are alcohol-related. "And this does not include the hundreds of disabling injuries each year caused by drunken drivers," he said. "As a victim of a drunken driver, take this opportunity to remind Alabama motorists to drive carefully and defensively and to wear their safety belts," said Siegelman. Observing traffic safety regulations is essential, particularly during holidays like Labor Day, he said. "Three-day weekends are traditionally dangerous driving periods for motorists," Siegelman said. "Of the thousands of car crashes caused during holidays, far too many of these are attributed to drivers who elect to drive under th influence of alcohol. It is the intent of programs such as the new SOBER effort to help stop these three-day roadway massacres." Siegelman said concerted public awareness and education programs combined with strict enforcement of the state's DUI law by state and local law enforcement agencies "help to prevent continued victimization of Alabama's families by drunken drivers.

A one-vehicle accident Wednesday, August 28, claimed the life of David Lamar Trawick, age 38. The accident happened on County Road 43 (Weeks Bridge Road) between Coffee County Salvage and the WKMX tower, just off U.S. 84. Trawick, who worked at Southland Broilers, was apparently enroute home at about 4:25 p.m. State troopers Charles R. Ward and Ronnie W. Whitworth investigated the accident and stated Trawick apparently lost control of the 1979 Chevrolet pickup truck he was driving, skidded out of control and into the ravine. It appeared he was thrown from the vehicle, after the windshield popped out and the truck rolled on him, killing him instantly, Trawick's pickup, pictured above, came to rest upright with the most severe damage being to the roof of the cab.

Cain and Taylor worked for lasses and one study period. With a month on the seven period the added hour, students have more schedule the school now has. Cain said, "The Plan o time to add extra academic courses to their schedules. Some of the Excellence calls for 360 minutes of advanced courses offered to them class instruction and with the new are advanced biology, chemistry, schedule, we are offering 366 world geography, Spanish, algebra minutes of classroom instruction.' and advanced English grammer and He added, "we are well within the composition. The extra hour also guidelines set in the Plan of allows students the opportunity to Excellence." School begins at 7:55 attend the Area Vocational Center a.m. and ends at 3:00 p.m. Classes in New Brockton which offers are 52 minutes long with one class courses in computers and business, lasting 54 minutes.

High school students were prehealth occupations education. The registered for classes the week before school began so the faculty could explain the new schedule. Cain said the students and parents have excepted the schedule and like the idea that students have more classes available for them to take. Teachers like the schedule because their class sizes are smaller, and they are still teaching six hours a day with an hour for a planning period.
